HONORING OUR ANCESTORS 2015:

It was a wonderful event, hope you were able to attend.
Neal McKay officiated the ceremony .

There was prayers and many stories were shared, it was a beautiful day, warm and sunny. About 50 people came. We lit the sacred fire at 10am. The ceremony was 11am and at 1pm we went to the Dupuis House for a feast.

Honoring our ancestors takes place no matter the weather or temperature.

If you think it might be too chilly, please consider our ancestors who were forced to endured the frigid temperatures, with poor threadbare clothes.—

PROFITS & LOSSES, FINANCIAL STATEMENTS:

The tribe currently has $12,000 in the business account, $4,200 in the Wacipi account, $2,400 in the land account and $1,400 in the scholarship fund.

We reconcile all four checking accounts each month.

The office does not need to file the 990 forms as we made less than 50k this year.

Reconciling of the checking account, profit & loss and balance sheets are available to be seen at the Tribal and voting membership meetings.

INIPI:

Mendota Mdewakanton Dakota Tribal Community Inipi (Sweat Lodge Ceremony Agreement) with the Minnesota Historical Society.

The recovery of ceremonies, spiritual practices and culture is of vital importance to the Mendota Mdewakanton Dakota Tribal Community as it is for all Indigenous peoples.

Together they represent a traditional Dakota way of life that can be a gift for all Minnesotans and all peoples. The Inipi Ceremony is among the seven rights given by the White Buffalo Calf woman so that the people might live. While it is a ceremony with immediate benefit to participants, the Inipi also reflects a way of life, calling for humility and through the seven directions an awareness of being part of something much greater than oneself.

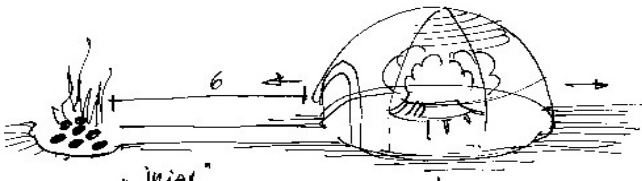

All the elements of the Inipi are sacred, connecting participants to the Creator and the spirit present in all existence. The "grandfather" rocks are sacred. The water poured on the rocks is sacred. Steam from the water rises up as prayers to the Creator. Walking in the way of the Inipi provides a path for healing of body, mind, spirit and emotions, touching all four realms on the journey toward wholeness and relationship with the Creator and all people. The Inipi is not only an ancient and vital sacred tradition for the Dakota people; it is a way of life that offers promise to all people.

-Pastor Tim, Cherokee Park United Church in St. Paul, MN.

Joseph Bester will be officiating the inipi ceremony every second Sunday of every month. Please check the website for more information including scheduled dates and times. Come and join us for a sweat!

This is what an inipi looks like, also known as a sweat lodge.

EXCITING INSURANCE UPDATE:

Our community needs to have insurance for our inipi ceremonies and the Dupuis house.

The quote we received for a 2 million dollar policy was $850 a year.

Also we have insurance on our office which equals $450 per year, this is a total of $1,300 per year we must pay for insurance.

GOOD NEWS:

We want to thank Pat Stark for letting us know about Curtiss Stark at American Family Insurance.

He has been an insurance agent for over 22 years and he worked with us to get us the best possible rate.

Thanks to Curtiss, our $2 million insurance policy will now be only $125 per year and that includes both the inipi AND the office insurance!

If he was able to give us such a good rate, he may be able to help you with your insurance needs as well.

Give him a call at his office and let him know you heard about him from us.

I went to the Pow Wow when I was in America last year and I have never met a more friendly group of people in my life.

Everyone was cheerful and happy and I think everything about it was fantastic.

They accepted everybody, I didn't feel unwanted there. Everyone went round in a circle and shook hands; again they were so friendly and welcoming. We had a big meal and I really enjoyed that too. People were chatting to me; I had a nice chat with a man and his wife.

The second day at the Pow Wow we saw the dancing and I thought it was damn marvelous! I really enjoyed myself. I bought lots of souvenirs from the stalls and I am really hoping to go back again this year. I only have one regret, and that is that I couldn't get up and do the dancing with them

Sincerely, Reginald Davies, 78 - UK
