

Disavowing the Doctrine of Discovery: Acknowledgment, Dialogue and Opportunities for Action

This fall, Cherokee Park United Church is taking a hard look at difficult historical and theological truths about the tragic treatment of Dakota, Ojibwe and other Indigenous people by our state, nation and religious institutions. In cooperation with the St. Paul Interfaith Network (SPIN), we are seeking to come to terms with the significant role churches and faith communities played in genocide, crushing Native languages, cultures and religious practices.

We will host a two-part dialogue at our church, 371 Baker St., on St. Paul's West Side:

Monday, Oct. 13, 7-9:15 p.m.

On Indigenous People's Day, we will host a public screening of the documentary film *Doctrine of Discovery, presented by filmmaker Sheldon Wolfchild of the Lower Sioux Indian Community. The film will be followed by small group dialogues. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. (Film is appropriate for junior high school aged youth and up.)

Father Hennepin "discovers" St. Anthony Falls

Tuesday, Oct. 28, 7– 9:15 p.m.:

A deeper exploration of issues of history, theology, and trauma raised by the film (but will not include the film). Details to be determined.

The starting point for our dialogue is the Doctrine of Discovery—the catchall phrase for 15th Century papal edicts that gave explorers the legal and religious justifications to seize lands occupied by non-baptized “heathens.” It set the course for slavery, forced conversions and the genocide of Indigenous people. Discovery was the forerunner to the concept of “Manifest Destiny,” the belief that European settlers were divinely ordained to take possession of this land. The impact of these beliefs is not ancient history. By many measures—such as poverty, income and health—the historical trauma suffered by Native American peoples under the guise of the Doctrine of Discovery and Manifest Destiny is still very present today. This history calls for a greater understanding and response.
